TOBAR ROAD OPEN

Portions of the Tobar Road south of Wells, Nevada, which were closed for construction in November, are now open.

“We were able to get the new culverts installed at three locations on the Tobar Road about 11 miles southeast from the Tobar/U.S. 93 junction,” explained BLM Elko Field Office Engineer Norm Rockwell.

The Tobar Road junction is about seven miles south of Wells, Nevada, on U.S. Highway 93.

“We had planned to wrap up the project this year, but the snow and colder temperatures have shut us down for the winter. All that’s left to finish is some final dirt work and grading around the culvert ends and roadway slopes. We will complete the work next spring and it will not require any roadway closure,” added Rockwell.

“We increased the size and number of culverts on the Tobar Road to give them extra capacity in case of flooding or high water. We also widened the road width in the culvert areas for safety purposes. We very much appreciate everyone’s cooperation during the construction activities,” Rockwell concluded.

For more information about the Tobar or other road projects, call Norm Rockwell at the BLM Elko Field Office (775) 753-0200.
